Suetonius described how Livy encouraged the future emperor Claudius, who was born in 10 BC, to explore the writing of history during his childhood. Livy himself was married and had at least one daughter and one son. Livy's most famous work was his history of Rome. In it he narrates a complete history of the city of Rome, from its foundation to the death of Augustus. The History of Rome originally comprised 142 "books", thirty-five of which Books 1 10 with the Preface and Books 21 45 still exist in reasonably complete form. Damage to a manuscript of the 5th century resulted in large gaps ( lacunae ) in Books 41 and 43 45 (small lacunae exist elsewhere); that is, the material is not covered in any source of Livy's text.
