The other thing I need to mention is that you will want to use lean ground beef with this recipe (90%+ lean). Since you won't be precooking and draining the meat, you want to make sure you won't have all of that excess grease in the chili. I used 90% and there was no grease on top of the chili at all. It turned out perfect.

Easy Chili Recipe MyRecipes

I wanted to make a good basic chili, but don't have access to a slow cooker. I pretty much made as directed (added in a jalapeno at the advice of other reviewers for more spice!). After adding in all the spices, I let simmer covered on low for about 2.5 hours, adding about a half a cup of water when it looked low. Has great rich flavor! Will definitely make again.

But if you're like me and believe beans are as integral to a great bowl of chili as beef, if not more so, read on. To be honest, there's nothing wrong with canned kidney beans in a chili. They are uniformly cooked and hold their shape well, and at least in chili the relative lack of flavor in canned versus dried beans is not an issue.
