Differences Between Stocks and Bonds The Balance

Bonds lack the powerful long-term return potential of stocks, but they are preferred by investors for whom income is a priority. Also, bonds are less risky than stocks. While their prices fluctuate in the market sometimes quite substantially in the case of higher-risk market segments - the vast majority of bonds tend to pay back the full amount of principal at maturity, and there is much less risk of loss than there is with stocks.

Stocks and Bonds How to Choose the Best Investments

A bond investor typically seeks income and security, and in fact, investing in bonds is often considered a more conservative option than investing in stocks. But bonds do carry risk. Bond risks include interest rate risk, in which rising interest rates reduce the market value of the bond, and credit risk, which is the possibility that a company won't be able to pay you interest or principal.
