Suds in Your Eye by Mary Lasswell The Neglected Books Page

Suds in Your Eye is about as substantial as the head on a freshly-poured beer but a lot more fun. Suds tells the story of three older women (and an older man referred to only as the Old Timer) who come together to scrape through some lean times during the Second World War. Mrs. Feely lives in a rickety old house known as Noah s Ark, which sits in the middle of the junk yard left her by her husband.

These are ladies banding together during World War II to lend each other sisterly support and companionship. This is a bygone era where the ladies address each other using their last names and titles. I had to read all six of the "Suds" books to discover each of their first names.
