If the pain is constant or there all the time, it isn t a nerve related problem. Because think about it, if it was a muscle pain, like you worked out too hard at the gym, you would have for example lactic acid buildup in the muscles, and it would be there constantly for a few days and then go away. Similarly for a tendon strain or bone fracture it would be there constantly for a few weeks and then resolve. About two weeks for a tendon strain and six to eight weeks to heal a bone fracture.
