8 Things I Learned From Your Money Your Brain

1. The brain activity of a person that s making money on their investments is indistinguishable from a person who is high on cocaine or morphine. According to Zweig, the brain of a cocaine addict who is expecting to get a fix and people who are expecting to make a profitable financial gamble are virtually the same. This explains why we tend to get overconfident and greedy with our investments. We want more, more, more because of the rush.
